'Death of a Salesman' Opening Set For Four Day Stand at Provo High

TENSE ACTION—Calvin H. Evans threatens Lael J. Woodbury in a scene from "Death of a Salesman," which is opening tomorrow night at the Provo High auditorium.

FOOD FOR DANCE—Kirk Hart, John Woodward collect admission from Karen Butters and George Jarvis at AWS-AMS mat dance being held to support Christmas drive.

Bread and Butter For Needy Charged For Mat Dance

A can of soup, a package of candy or some contribution for Provo's needy families are required to get students into the mat dance today.

This dance is a special feature of the annual ten-day Christmas drive under the direction of the AMS and the AWS.

Besides contributing at the dance, students should take advantage of the boxes placed on campus if they are unaffiliated with an organization. Each student is expected to donate at least fifty cents or contributions in value.

All articles of clothing should be taken to the north end of the stadiumhouse between hours of 12-1 p.m. and 4-5 p.m. daily. Money contributions boxes are located at the information booth, Smith cafeteria, bookstore and Science building lobby.

The drive, scheduled to end Friday, has the object of aiding needy families in the Provo area. All organizations on campus have pledged themselves to support the program.

Indication of progress is a Christmas tree set up in the Smith lobby with a light for each organization completing its quota.

USC Lambda Delta Sigma Schedules Xmas Dance

Attention, California students going home for Christmas!

The Lambda Delta Sigma of the University of Southern California is sponsoring a formal Christmas dance at the Arlington ward, 48th St., 11th Ave. December 22, at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets for Lambda Delt members will be $1.00 per couple and $1.50 per couple for non-members.

Tickets can be reserved by contacting Sharon Murphy, 801 Hilgard Ave., Los Angeles, 24; Jack Frank, 719 So. Arizona Ave., Los Angeles, 22; Dave Smith, 4252 Edgehill Drive, Los Angeles, 8.

Tickets can also be obtained at the door.

Graduate Pictures Slated Next Week

All students who will graduate this year with Bachelors or Masters degrees are urged to have their pictures taken Dec. 15 and 16 at the photo studio, 276 Physical Science building.

The photographs, according to Mr. Duffin, may be used by the placement bureau and the student to find employment or in making application for graduate study.

Copies of the pictures will also be given to department heads and deans. It is recommended that all eligible students avail themselves of the the picture arangements.

SNOW FROLIC HEADS PLAN YEAR'S BUDGET

Snow Carnival committee heads are required to meet at 4:45 p.m. today in 240 J. S.

Each member must bring his complete financial budget and a list of committee members' names, addresses, and telephone numbers. At 5 p.m. all committee members and anyone interested in working on the Snow Carnival will meet in this same room.

Christmas Carolers Sing Tomorrow

Studentbody Christmas caroling under the direction of the AWS Council will be held tomorrow night beginning at 8 p.m. for all interested students, according to Kathy Latimer, AWS president.

All those desiring to join in the fun are asked to meet promptly at 8 o'clock at Campus Hall from where they will proceed through Wymomt and then southwest from the campus.

Persons wishing to have the carolers stop are asked to leave their porch lights on.

Y Mistletoe Frolic Ends Dances For Fall Quarter

"I wonder who's kissing her now" will be the question on everyone's lips Friday in the Social Hall and Joseph Smith ballroom.

The playful occasion will be the annual Mistletoe Frolic sponsored by Delta Phi. Winding up the studentbody social calendar for 1952, the dance will be "heels and hose" with tickets selling at 75 cents per couple. Booths will be open in the Smith and Science buildings Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to meet the expected demand.

The orchestras of Don Toomey in the Ballroom and Wes Barry in the Social Hall will provide some scintillating rhythm. Decorations will be based on the theme, "The Night Before Christmas."

Physical Exam Necessary To Receive Fall Grades

All new students must have a physical examination through the student health service. This is the last week that examinations will be given.

At the end of the week a check will be made with the registrar's office and those students who have not had an examination will not receive fall quarter credits.

CONCERT BAND PERFORMS THIS EVENING

Carl Fuerstner will conduct the Brigham Young concert band in the premier performance of his "Overture for Band" today at 8 p.m. in the Provo Tabernacle.

The musicale also includes a variety of band works representing well-known contemporary composers and the old masters.

The program will be as follows: "Overture for Band" by Fuerstner; "Tunbridge Fair," intermezzo for band, Walter Piston; "Air and Fugue a la Gigue" by J. S. Bach, arranged by Gustov Holst; "Water Music Suite," G. F. Handel; "Triumphal March," Miaskovsky; and "March to the Scaffold," Berlioz.

The band, directed by Norman J. Hunt, is composed of 80 student instrumentalists selected by audition. Approximately 15 states are represented in the personnel of the aggregation.

In addition to concerts each quarter, the concert band will go on tour in the spring.

Novel Sets Utilized In Drama

Something new in stage settings will be seen in this week's production of "Death of a Salesman" by the Brigham Young University Theatre players, according to Dr. Harold I. Hansen, director, and Prof. Alfred Sensenbach, set designer.

The play will feature a two-story set, with acting going on on two levels during most of the play.

"Death of a Salesman" will open tomorrow and run through Saturday night on the stage of the Provo High School auditorium. Tickets are now on sale at the Smith information booth and Heindselman's music store. Students will be admitted on activity cards and public admission is 75 cents.

This will be the only play presented off campus, Dr. Hansen said. The reason for the switch in stages, according to Dr. Hansen, was a difficulty in scheduling and the new-type settings which require a higher stage than can be found on the campus.

The production staff is headed by Prof. Sensenbach in charge of stage settings; Bob Struthers, technical director; and Junius Hamblin, lighting designer.

Leading roles in "Death of a Salesman" will be taken by Heloyce Hanson, Dr. Hansen, Grant Jensen, Randall Buchanan, Wayne Jenkins, Calvin Evans, Arthur Dummer, Joyce Gustafson, and Lael Woodbury.

Dixie Classic Queen Entry Chosen By Casaba Team

Blond, blue-eyed, Millicent Stewart has been chosen by the Brigham Young University basketball team to represent the school in the annual Dixie Classic.

Miss Stewart was chosen by vote of the team, and will compete with girls from the seven other competing teams for queen of the nationally-famous basketball tournament. She will accompany the team to Raleigh, N. C., and will there represent the team and the school if elected queen.

MILLICENT STEWART

Miss Stewart is a freshman at the Y.

Miss Stewart is a native of Spanish Fork, Utah. She was active in high school activities, and served as an officer in the Pep club and as president of the Thespians. She likes to dance, play ping pong, and swim, and she plans on majoring in dancing.

In addition to her high school activities, she has served as teacher of a nursery class in Sunday School, and is currently the chorister for her ward in Spanish Fork.

EDUCATION & AESTHETICS

Followers of the theatre and Shakespeare as well as others were given a real treat last week with the Barter Theatre's presentation of "Merchant of Venice."

As a result of the enthusiasm shown by the studentbody, Dr. Harold I. Hansen of the speech department informed the UNIVERSE that if student support warrants it the Theatre will include BYU on their tour each year. Is more proof needed to show student interest than the more than 3,400 persons attending?

Through affiliation with this university students are able to participate, at no extra cost to them, in productions the calibre of "Merchant of Venice." Those in charge are to be commended for bringing groups such as this to our campus, and should be encouraged to continue doing so.

The aesthetic value gained by attendance at this, as well as university-sponsored lyceum numbers, is immeasurable. The purpose of a liberal arts education is far-reaching, and idealistically endeavors to give students a well-rounded background in areas other than the major field. Because of this philosophy the administration endeavors to bring noted musicians, lecturers, and dramatists within easy reach of all who attend this university. Those who fail to realize the education lost by missing groups such as the Barter Theatre and the recent appearance of the Utah Symphony Orcestra neglect a vital part of their education.

The UNIVERSE will support any effort of the university to present productions the standard of "Merchant of Venice."

Friendly, If Not Californian . . .

Dear Editor:

Mah blood boiled when I read the grave mistake that either your proofers failed to detect or your writers so ignorantly made.

The mistake can be found on page 8 of your Dec. 4 issue. The blunder listing Vonda Christensen, candidate for most friendly girl on campus, as being a California Huntingtonite is not only incorrect but illogical.

It is quite obvious that the amount of iodine in the California air is not conducive to the production of friendly girls.

Housing Policy Lashed . . .

Dear Editor:

There is a very serious problem arising in Campus Dorm or with the housing situation. This is the trouble—

At the beginning of the year we all signed a contract and with it paid fifty-three dollars for May's rent saying we would live in the dorm for one year unless unusual circumstances arose.

During the quarter several of us girls have become engaged and are getting married at the close of the quarter. But since marriage is not an unusual circumstance according to the housing department, we are losing the fifty-three dollars for our May rent. Unless we pay fifty-three more dollars for nineteen days in December we will be given E's for all our classes.

There is even one girl who is having to leave because of ill health. Still she gets no refund.

The housing office informs us that they are losing money because of our leaving the dorm, but its a known fact that several new girls are moving in and the dorm will be completely filled next quarter.

Isn't this university one which is supposed to stand for honor?? Do you think this is being honest in refusing to refund our money and yet making money from new girls moving into the dorm????

We solicit your cooperation and immediate action in helping to solve this problem.

Registration Wins Praise . . .

Dear Editor:

Plaudits! Orchids, (and all that sort of rot) may the petals fall where they belong. Last weekend's IBM registration came pleasingly close to perfection.

Few long faces and many short lines, coupled with a more efficient proceedure, have elevated my fall impression of IBM registration. Dr. Antone K. Romney should be sleeping better these nights.

Hearts & Flowers Scrambled With Un-jackpot

by Zan Knudson

We've had several comments lately to the effect that this column is degenerating into a gossip sheet. So alright, already, this time we won't make any pretexts about it. We'll give the straight facts concerning hearts, unbroken, smashed and in the state of repair.

Our favorite cousin, Stan Ellsworth, slapped his pin on Bebe Johnson the other day, much to our surprise; he being the casanova type. Claude Thomas is still wavering between his three Toke girls. Why don't you flip for it, Claude. And while you're at it, Lenore could use some assistance in helping her make up her mind between her two Jerrys, Horsley and Hyde. Bonnie Wade and Slooter finally going steady. To show how clairvoyant we are we'd predicted that last spring.

Donna Atchison creeping about making plans for close-at-hand wedding. Mary Anne Sorenson wavering between two Bricker men. Ruff with a different girl every night last week. Don't even have space here to go into his multiple romances.

Things are picking up for Ron and Smooter. Girls were pretty scarce over Thanksgiving and they almost had to stay in one night. But they're now back to the old beat—library socializing, bookstore broozing, not among the books either, and Rainbow Randevu-ing. Miss America Brown and Larry on and off the rocks. Nell and Kit are now engaged. Yippy skippy.

Bonnie Davis still waiting for her soldier boy. Marilyn McFarland pinned to Murray McInnes. Boyd Blackham and Edna May making whoopie every weekend. Lynn Jeppson and Mel's little brother, Bob Hutchins twosuming it. Suzanne Narkaus and Paul Kochever looking serious.

At for us, we feel this way about the current crop of boys—if there's such a thing as an un-jackpot, we've hit it!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Bibler

'Merchant of Venice' Players Draw Critics' Appreciation

by Hugh Rush · UNIVERSE Drama Critic

The University Theatre gained new respect last week by bringing to campus the Barter Theatre's production of "The Merchant of Venice."

Director Margaret Perry receives credit for a commendable job; Shakespeare still claims highest plaudits. Miss Perry's treatment of the script, while altering rather severely the nature of the suitors and in particular making Shylock a groveling weakling in his final scene, was on the whole sound and theatrically exciting.

Because so many of us have a touch of the "groundling" in our makeup, I cannot help feeling that Miss Perry's generous supply of buffoonery, a few times bordering on the adolescent, was wisely inserted. Be it remembered that Barter's national tour is playing to audiences many of whom have had little experience in theatregoing and even less in seeing Shakespeare. These concessions to ensure commercial success did not destroy the intelligence of "The Merchant" nor prevent the cast from carrying it off quite well.

Woodrow Romoff gave an exceptionally fine performance as Shylock. Perhaps it was too good for he completely won the sympathy of the audience, leaving none for the Merchant Antonio. This may be attributed directly to Miss Perry's treatment which would not pull Romoff's character down a level.

There was less to Sylvia Short's portrayal of Portia than met the eye. She was content to dazzle us (I was; weren't you?) with her physical endowments until the trial scene in which she got around to the serious business of being Portia. Here she succeeded where decolletage did not.

Bassanio is an important character who should soar aloft in occasional flights of poetry. Barter's earthbound John Hallow floundered in a mire of technique. Indeed he was weak throughout having all the aspects of talent but no talent.

The cast generally was satisfactory considering the enormous difficulty of maintaining quality and discipline after a year and a half of touring. Perhaps they, understandably tired, are to be blamed for failure to integrate business in sustained ensemble playing. Miss Perry's stage pictures may have been lovely and artful a year ago; but not now with mechanics obvious. Be all this as it may, "The Merchant" was a lively evening, and an appreciated addition to the theatre season.

LEGISLATIVE LEANINGS

by Dick Oveson · UNIVERSE Staff writer

IOC's last meeting was a refreshing experience. In sharp contrast to several of this year's sessions, last week's council gathering was an example of just what IOC can accomplish. The council moved through an evening of the most significant legislation to come before the body for some time, and on the whole, it was a pretty orderly session.

For example, a motion to form a rules committee met with such widespread approval that it was passed almost immediately. This committee will chew proposed legislation into digestible form, and will also form a schedule for IOC's weekly meetings. While this is but the first step in what must eventually become a drastic revision of IOC legislative procedure, there should be a big increase in the council's ability to handle legislation as a result of this committee.

Further along this line, IOC's departmental and social unit committees did a bang up job. While both are to be commended for their reports, the social unit group deserves something a little special.

Social units at the Y are faced with the problem of maintaining standards set up by the University (no black ball or discrimination, etc.), as indeed they must, and at the same time maintain some kind of sensible size. Social units certainly have their place on campus. Witness this year's Homecoming parade, the Christmas drive, the Snow Carnival and so on. But they must not compromise with established principles!

The social unit committee has recommended that a central committee on rushing procedures be established. This committee would handle all rushing activities, review complaints for submission to the penal court, and determine, by a system of interviews, whether or not any student had been slighted.

This is admittedly a stop-gap measure, for this committee obviously won't solve the problem. The IOC committee must continue its efforts. And of course, until both social unit affiliates and independent students become aware of their responsibilities—tolerance, objectivity and fairness—there will remain a problem.

Cougars Take LA State; Richey Leads Scorers

BYU's highly-regarded cage machine ran their early-season win record to four in a row last weekend as they twice breezed passed an outclassed team from Los Angeles State College.

The Brigs won the opener by an 83-48 margin and took the final tilt by a 56 to 37 count. As a whole, the Devils provided little more opposition than Idaho State did the previous weekend.

The twin tilts marked the first home appearance cf the current edition of the Cougars.

Whereas Friday the Brigs were hitting on all fours for a good part of the game, Saturday they just couldn't get started. The Californians played ball control and that helped hold down the score.

Friday night's walk-away was highlighted by the performances of Joe Richey, Harold Christensen, Neil Stephens and big John Barber of L.A. State. Richey was sensational on his shooting and racked up a total of 25 points in the twenty-five minutes that he was in the game. Chris played his usual outstanding floor game and Neil Stephens, the Idaho spud, racked up 11 points in one quarter. Barber gave the fans a treat with his unusually high jumping and his sharp floorwork.

It was speed and defensive prowess that won for the Cougars Saturday night. Stan Watts' charges, led by Richey, ran the visitors into the ground.

Richey hit 12 counters to lead the victors, while Sherm Crump, Tom Karren, Harold Christensen and Van Burgess hit 9, 8, 6 and 6, respectively. Boyd Jarman played brilliant defensive ball during the time he was in.

Gene Boucher hit 13 points to lead all scorers. Most of his points came on well-directed heaves from near mid court. Muscular guard Norm Witte and center John Barber each contributed eight points and a good floor game to the losers.

The Cougar's next appearance will be on Friday night, when they play host to the San Francisco quintet. Washington State will also see action of the Y court. The W. Staters will play the Y on December 16.
